The Reno-Tahoe International Airport unveiled its "Carson City Arts: Taking Flight" exhibit Tuesday evening at the airport's gallery which features local artists who shine a spotlight on the capital city.

The gallery boasts artwork from 54 Carson City artists, including Western Nevada College faculty, members of the Carson City Arts & Culture Coalition, and members of the Nevada Arts Association.

Mayor Bob Crowell was a keynote speaker of the event attended by nearly 200 people.

"This shines a spotlight on Carson City and Carson City's arts and culture programs and our desire to be part of the arts and culture community of northern Nevada," said Mayor Crowell. "You could say from Carson City's

02-27-2019 - Carson City Artists Featured at depARTures Gallery

🕒 FEB 27, 2019

The Reno-Tahoe International Airport introduces the depARTures Gallery's newest exhibit, Carson City Arts: Taking Flight. This group exhibition of 54 artists represents the Carson City Arts & Culture Coalition, the Nevada Arts Association, and the Western Nevada College Art Faculty.

"We're so pleased to feature a broad range of artists from our state capitol in this exhibit," said Reno-Tahoe Airport Authority President and CEO Marily Mora. "The show highlights the unique arts culture that's so vibrant in Carson City and is a wonderful welcome for our passengers."

The gallery is located in the C Concourse of RNO.

Passengers traveling through Reno-Tahoe International Airport will be able to enjoy this unique exhibit now on display through April 25. Unfortunately, due to security reasons, this gallery is not open to the general public.
